Expanko Resilient Flooring Introduces New Wood & Stone Visuals for Vallarex Floating Cork Floors

Expanko Resilient Flooring introduces an expansion of its floating cork flooring line, Vallarex. The new line will feature 24 new visuals designed to meet the needs of the commercial market. In addition to 6 all new cork looks, the expansion will also introduce 18 wood and stone visuals, digitally printed on cork veneers. This new look of cork will increase the possibilities for specifying the high performance characteristics of cork in commercial spaces.

According to Randy Gillespie, Sr VP of Sales and Marketing, "Vallarex floating cork floors have always been an important part of our cork offering. The floors feature the same great performance of cork, with the ease of installation of floating floors. Through this new expansion, Expanko is able to meet the needs of a greater portion of the commercial market. The new digital printing technology makes it possible to get the look you want, without sacrificing the performance you need."

In addition to new visuals, the expansion includes upgrades to both the Vallarex finishes and locking systems. Floating cork floors provide comfort under foot, easy installation, low maintenance, high acoustic contributions and is GreenGuard Gold certified for Low VOCs. Many visuals will be available for quick delivery from Exton, PA.
